Will Present Acts for Hospital Agreements

Special acts authorizing the towns of Didsbury and Olds to make agreements with the municipalities of Mountain View and Westerdale with regard to the building of new hospitals at both points, will be presented to the Alberta Legislature as a result of a joint meeting of the towns and municipalities held at Olds last Wednesday.

Reeve George Clark occupied the chair, and Mr. Stan. Edwards, Olds, outlined the scheme, which was based on similar plans to those put through at Lacombe, where a new hospital had recently been built.

It was generally conceded that there was great need of better hospital facilities at both Didsbury and Olds, and Mr. Edwards pointed out that he had made a survey on the basis of $80,000 being required for the building of each hospital and found that the amount of taxes required for a 15-year debenture issue would be approximately 1 1/2 mills on town property and $1.60 per year on each quarter-section in the rural areas.

It was moved and carried that the municipal councils of Mountain View and Westerdale and the town councils of Olds and Didsbury here represented go on record, endorsing the recommendations made by the committee at their meeting in November last, for the erection of a hospital at Didsbury and a hospital at Olds, and that immediate steps be taken to bring a definite proposition before the individual councils and have same ratified.

The basis of the agreements was discussed and Mr. W. A. Austin was asked to prepare a bill to be presented to the Alberta Legislature, authorizing the towns of Didsbury and Olds to each issue debentures to the amount of $80,000, the two municipalities agreeing to be liable for one-third of the debenture in each case. The liability of Didsbury would thus be $10,000 and the liability of Olds would be a like amount.

Messrs W. A. Austin and S. Edwards were appointed as a delegation to place the matter before the Board of Public Utilities with a view to having the bills passed at the present session of the legislature.

U.G.G. Ltd. Sponsor Free Entertainment

The United Grain Growers Ltd. sponsored free picture shows at the Melvin Hall on Monday evening and the Mt. View Community Hall on Tuesday evening.

Mr. W. Hempell, Calgary, who is with the organization department of the U.G.G. gave a short talk on the history and work of the Company. Moving pictures on control of grasshoppers, the making of paper and the printing of the Country Guide were screened. Other entertaining items were also shown.

There were good crowds at each meeting and the entertainment was greatly appreciated.

Knox United Church Notes.

The minister will be in charge of the services next Sunday at Westcott 11 a.m., Westerdale 3 p.m. and Town 7.30 p.m. His topic is to be, "What has Christianity to say—About the Unseen World?" A cordial invitation is extended to all.

"Family Party."

At the "Family Party" given by Knox United Church Junior Choir on Friday evening, a large number of guests were entertained to a very enjoyable evening. A short program with Miss E. Geeson (solo), Miss Alma Shaw (reading), and Sammy and Mary Boorman (piano duet) took part.

The proceeds of the party went towards the expenses in travelling to Calgary for the broadcast which the choir will give Saturday evening over CFCN.

Field Day for O.S.A. Students.

The second year students of the Olds School of Agriculture visited the Didsbury Jersey Farm on Saturday last and held a field day.

Mr. F. F. Parkinson and Mr. Hugh McPhail was in charge of the party. A judging contest was held.

Mr. Reid Clarke conducted the boys around the barns and farms and individual animals were brought out for inspection.

At the Movies.

All the resources of the United States Navy were loaned, it is said, to Warner Brothers for the production of a thrilling melodrama called "Submarine D-1" which comes to the Opera House this weekend and is announced as the most stirring and authentic film ever made with a "tin fish"—as the gobs irreverently term an undersea boat—as its subject.

The movie folk journeyed to Newport, R.I., to make part of it, down to Cocos Coco in the Panama Canal zone for another, and then to San Diego for a lot more.

One of the most modern of submarines, the real D-1 (also known as the "Dolphin"), was used for the picture. Battleships, cruisers, destroyers and the like, are to be seen in its action.

Pat O'Brien and George Brent are co-starred, and in one of the leading supporting roles is the sensational young newcomer, Wayne Morris.

Silver Wedding.

Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Cunningham received a pleasant surprise on Friday evening, when about 70 friends gathered to celebrate their silver wedding anniversary in Evangelical Church basement.

A program had been arranged during which the couple were presented with a silver casserole in honor of the occasion.

An enjoyable lunch was served.

WEDDINGS

SWANSON—HUNTER

A quiet wedding took place in Carstairs on Saturday, March 19th, when Jean Elizabeth, only daughter of Mrs. Emily Hunter, of Didsbury, was united in marriage to Harold Elmer, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Swanson, of Carstairs.

The bride was attired in a Bagdad blue crepe velveteen dress trimmed with gold, while Miss Dorothy Liesemer, who acted as bridesmaid, wore a dress of blue celanese with blue accessories.

Mr. Joseph Hunter, brother of the bride, acted as best man.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. C. E. Rogers.

In celebration of the event Mrs. Emily Hunter served a chicken dinner on Sunday. The following were present: The bride and groom, Mrs. E. Hunter and sons Joseph and Lawrence, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Swanson, Mrs. Parker, Miss Dorothy Liesemer, Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Hunter, Mr. and Mrs. Otto Faas, Mr. Martin Faas, and Mrs. Dugan and son Donald, of Calgary. The happy couple will reside on the groom's farm east of Carstairs.

The Cult Of The Isms

Not only in Canada but the world over generally this is the day and age of "isms", fascism, communism and what have you, as opposed to the tried political faith symbolized in the word "democracy", the creed upon which Canada and all the other self-governing units of the British Empire, the United States, and, in Europe, the Scandinavian and other countries are founded or have adopted and have made progress to date.

Factions are busy here and elsewhere promoting one or other of a multiplicity of these "isms", emblematic of political and economic doctrines which mark a departure from the democratic form of government, whose fundamental principle is the right of the people to say who shall govern them and how they shall be governed.

Some of these doctrines are presented in diluted form to meet local conditions and exigencies or are sugar coated in the hope that thus disguised, they will appeal to the rank and file of the people who have the final say.

The great objection to the sugar coated pill is that its attractive and palatable covering usually hides a nauseating dose of physis which cannot easily be disgorged once the pill has been swallowed, or, if it must subsequently be ejected it can only be done by the absorption of an emetic, perhaps more disagreeable than the original dose.

Great Forward Strides

Even after making full allowances for the set back which has resulted during the past few years of world wide economic and agricultural depression, it is easily demonstrable that great strides have been made in the provision of material comforts enjoyed by ever-widening circles of people, and that in no countries in the world has this accession to more comforts been so universal than in the great democracies. In such countries as Great Britain, the United States and Canada delicacies have become every day fare and luxuries have become necessities with each passing decade.

To see the truth of this assertion one has only to look around, take stock of possessions and every day comforts and compare them with what was in vogue 25 or even 15 years ago and also compare the number of people to whom many of these things are attainable now, and then. To complete the picture one should likewise compare the extent to which things which are to-day regarded as necessities by the rank and file of the people in the most progressive of the democratic countries with the extent to which many of these things are still luxuries to the common people in countries which have abjured the right of self-government.

Fictitious Wealth

It is true that during the past few years many people have suffered great hardships due to the widespread nature of the economic depression which followed the crash of 1929 and particularly in this case in sections of this country which sustained the impact of an agricultural depression super-imposed upon the commercial and financial debacle and one's perspective is apt to be clouded when contrasting the difficulties under which people are laboring in comparison with the conditions which existed in those halcyon days when every person expected to become rich overnight and, in fact, was wealthy in greater or less degree—on paper.

It must not be forgotten, however, that the apparent progress in that year or two which led up to the rout in the fall of 1929 was a fictitious one. It was not real because it was not based on productive work but was founded on the false doctrine of "something for nothing". It was the practice of this theory on widespread scale which brought about the crash and any other theory which has "something for nothing" as its basic creed is equally bound to sooner or later bring a similar disaster.

Electors Should Show Interest

Those engaged in promoting some form of government other than the democratic are wont to indict self-government on the ground that it is frequently inefficient and lends itself too easily to racketeering and corruption, but if that is the case, are not the people themselves to blame? Is it conceivable that if the entire electorate took a keen interest in their own affairs, not only at election times, but the year round, that their representatives could afford to let them down?

One of the handicaps to democratic form of government is that so many electors show very little interest in what their representatives are doing except just around election time, and even then there is a substantial percentage which does not turn out to vote and this applies in all spheres—municipal, provincial and federal.

The Ideal Objective

Democratic government should be and can be efficient; it should be and can be free of racketeering or corruption, on large scale or small, but it can only be expected to measure up to these ideals if the electorate is sufficiently enlightened and sufficiently interested to make it so and those objectives can only be achieved by the rank and file of the electorate devoting the necessary time and effort to study intelligently the problems of the country, the province and the municipality, not only occasionally but day in and day out. If that viewpoint is adopted by all the electors and problems are approached with a single eye to the benefit of the community as a whole, rather than the individual or the group, self government can be achieved to the highest degree, and there will be no thought of exchanging it for any system which may mean the bartering of liberty for a mess of pottage.

Enterprise Of Value

Lady Tweedsmuir's interest in books, and her concern for Canadians living in remote parts of the Prairies or in the drought areas, are shown happily in the announcement that in 15 months she has collected and sent to the West 11,000 volumes for free distribution. It is, states the Ottawa Journal, an enterprise of distinct national value.

In one housing project in England 520,298 houses have been built.

Smoke And Fire

Now that natural scientists endeavoring to reduce the smoke nuisance have found that the residue deposited by the burning of soft coal may be used as a smokeless, steady, long-burning fuel, it seems that where there's smoke there's still more fire, says the Christian Science Monitor.

"Wherever you go in the world," said Goldstein, "you will always find that the Jews are the leading people."

"Och man," objected MacGregor, "how about the North Pole?"

"Vell," retorted Goldstein, "Iceberg ain't no Scots name."

The Canadian girl has a "sweet tooth." Imported confectionery alone for the year ending Oct. 31, 1937, cost $888,917.

Creates A Problem

Newspaper Writers Puzzled Over Substitution Of Eire For Ireland

The casting of "Ireland" into the limbo of forgotten things, and its substitution by "Eire", has provided a nice little problem for newspaper writers. Even now they do not seem to have solved it to their complete satisfaction. The question is: if we cannot use "Ireland," are we still justified in using "Irish" as the adjective?

When the recent two-country conference was taking place many papers apparently decided that "Irish" was not admissible; they referred to it as the "Anglo-Eire" Conference. Others, mostly in the provinces, stuck tenaciously to "Irish" and persisted in referring to it as the "Anglo-Irish" conference.

There should be an authoritative ruling on this point, which has a certain subtlety likely to lead to a permanent variance in newspaper practice.

Is "Eire" the adjective as well as the noun—if not, what is the proper adjective and should it be used? Should one refer to the "Irish" people, the "Eire" people, or "the people of Eire"?

At the moment it would seem that "Irish" will continue in use. Most of the Irish papers, including Mr. de Valera's own party mouthpiece, used it on commenting on the recent conference. It also forms part of the title of at least three prominent Irish newspapers.

In any case, if certain papers persist in using "Eire" as the adjective, what will they do when a story breaks concerning the Irish Sea?—Newspaper World, London.

1938 Plans Call For Greater Use Of Newspapers And Magazines To Publicize Long List Of Food Products

Long one of Canada's largest users of advertising space in newspapers and magazines, General Foods Limited, are planning a substantial increase in lineages for these media in 1938, according to R. K. McIntosh, Vice-president.

"In completing our advertising plans for 1938 we are again recognizing the proven worth of newspapers and magazines in bringing the merits of our products to the attention of the public," said Mr. McIntosh. Maxwell House Coffee, Swans Down Cake Flour, Calumet Baking Powder, Jell-O Ice Cream Powder, Postum Grape-Nuts, Post's Bran Flakes, Certo, "Grape-Nuts" Flakes and Sanka Coffee are among the General Foods products which will receive wider advertising in publications during 1938.

Sir Josiah Stamp, director of the Bank of England, predicted in Los Angeles that the United States must become involved in the events in Europe. "Germany's demand is no simple matter of 'giving back' some colonies," said Sir Josiah in an interview. "Every nation that signed the treaty of Versailles must be consulted before these lands change hands. Then, too, the countries that border on the disputed colonies must be consulted."

Salvaged Material From Niagara Bridge Being Made Into Souvenirs

Japanese armament tycoons must take second place to souvenir hunters. For the scrap iron salvaged from Niagara's crumpled "honey-moon bridge" will be sold as keepsakes.

Employees of the Myer Salit Wrecking Co. risked their lives in salvaging the scrap iron from the river gorge, and the first shipment of twisted scrap was sent to the smelters of the Steel Company of Canada at Hamilton.

There the fragments will be melted down and rolled into strips, according to Myer Salit, president of the wrecking company.

"The strips will be stamped with a die of the old bridge and sold as souvenirs," said Mr. Salit. "Each piece will be certified as steel from the wrecked bridge. We have had offers from Japanese agents desiring to purchase the scrap metal but we have declined to enter any agreement with them."

"Well, whatever you were doing, don't do," said the earl. "Call it jiu-jitsu or the tango or whatnot, the kitchen, just before luncheon is no place for it."

He nonchalantly helped himself to a plum.

"I'm extremely sorry, m'lud," said Crump. "If I may be allowed to explain—"

"Explain away," said the earl, sitting down within reaching distance of the bowl of plums.

"I was going after a fiend—"

"Fiend, Crump? Are there fiends about?"

"Who but a fiend would steal the body of Elaine?" asked Crump.

"Come, come, Crump," said the earl, "your grief has got the better of your good sense. I condole with you in the loss of Elaine—I was fond of her myself, y'know—but I ask you who would purloin a deceased pug? It's not done, Crump. You must have mislaid her."

"No, m'lud. She has been taken away. And I think I know the villain—"

"Nasty hobby, stealing pugs," said the earl. "Who, in my household, has such deplorable taste?"

"I'd rather not say, m'lud. I suspect but cannot prove."

"It should be put a stop to."

"Yes, m'lud. And as it is, if I may say so, a personal matter, I hope you will permit me to settle it in my own way."

"But surely not with that rolling-pin?"

Crump tossed the rolling-pin on a table.

"I'm afraid I was all of a do and dither, m'lud, he said. "Cook saved me from making a blithering chump of myself."

"Cool of Cook," said the earl. "And now, Crump, may I suggest that you postpone your efforts to solve this mystery until after luncheon?"

"Very good, m'lud. I am calmer now. My faculties have returned to me, thanks to Cook."

"If I may be of any assistance—" offered the earl.

"Thank you, m'lud; but I think I can handle this matter better alone."

"You'll be temperate, Crump?"

"Yes, m'lud."

"Discreet?"

"Yes, m'lud."

"Tolerant of human foibles?"

"Yes, m'lud."

"No rolling-pins or other blunt instruments, eh?"

"No, m'lud."

"Including fists?"

"As to that, m'lud," replied Crump, "I cannot say positively. I shall endeavor to curb my emotions, but I find that sometimes—" he cast a fleet, tender glance at the cook—"they run away with me. I promise to do my best to be tactful and pacific—but—"

"I understand," said the earl. "If, Crump, your emotion should run away with you to the extent, let us say, of one medium-hard smack on the proboscis, no official notice will be taken of the incident."

"Thank you, m'lud."

"I hope," said the earl, "that luncheon will be ready soon. Potting always gives me a cormorant's appetite. I could gobble a roast gorilla stuffed with pygmies."

"We have cutlets and gooseberry tart, m'lud," said Mrs. Featherby.

"Splendid. Just have Sloat round up Mr. Bingley and well have at those cutlets."

But when Sloat, saved, for the nonce, from chastisement, went to summon Ernest, he could not find him. A meticulous search of the castle and grounds, including a paging of the dungeon, failed to locate the tenant. Willy-nilly, the earl and Lady Rosa sat down to luncheon without Ernest.

"Wandered off somewhere, I suppose," said the earl. "He's such a jack-in-the-box. Always popping in and out. He was helping me pot this morning, and, whoosh—he vanished. I must say, though," added the earl, "that he pots a pretty geranium."

"I do hope nothing has happened to him," said Rosa.

"This is England, my dear," the earl reminded her. "The worst thing that can happen to a nice young man here is unrequited affection. We've crack-pots galore on this island, but singularly few yeggs, crooks, and banditti. Our habit of hanging them discourages them. So don't worry about Ernest. A chap who can hold his own against Punder is a match for any one he may meet in the lanes of Somersetshire."

"Have you heard anything further from Punder?" asked Rosa.

"Not even a post-card from Brighton, wishing I was there," replied the earl. "But why mention Punder? He doesn't go well with cutlets."

"He's on my mind," Lady Rosa.

"Get him off at once," advised the earl. "He's just a lot of bluster."

"I don't think so, father."

"Forget the big barnacle," said the earl. "Let us talk of pleasanter things. Ernest, for example. You like him, don't you, Rosa?"

"Yes, I do. He's been so considerate. And I like his imagination. Of course, a modern young man who sometimes thinks he is back in medieval times, and behaves as Ernest often does, must have March hares in his lurch; but I never did like men who are so sane they are dull."

"I take that as a compliment," said the earl, with a bow.

"You may, father," laughed Rosa. "To return to Ernest. His instincts are right, but he is amazingly naïve—"

"Hate sophisticated people myself," said the earl. "They are so blooming sophisticated."

Crump came in.

"Captain Duff-Hooper to see you, m'lady," he announced.

"Ask him to wait in the library, will you, Crump?"

"Yes, m'lady."

"Tell him I won't keep him waiting long. It'll take me about ten minutes to slip into my riding clothes."

"Yes, m'lady."

"Hey, wait," said the earl, as Rosa prepared to leave. "Aren't you going to finish your tart?"

"Sorry. Haven't time," she said. "You know how Esme fumes and fusses if he's kept waiting."

"I do," said the earl. "One of his less amiable traits. Take the tart with you."

"Sound plea," said Rosa, and did so.

Ernest did not appear until dinner time, and he was late for dinner at that.

"I'm very sorry," he apologized, as he entered, with the roast, "but I had to go to Bristol on business."

"Quite all right, Ernest, quite all right," said the earl, helping him to a cut from the joint. "Stock market jumpy, eh?"

"Very jumpy."

"Busy with the bulls and bears, I suppose."

"Yes, sir."

"I never can remember which is which," said the earl. "Let me see now—the bulls gore the lambs, and the bears claw 'em. Is that right?"

"Yes, sir," replied Ernest, though he was not at all sure himself.

"I wish," said the earl, "you'd explain the workings of Wall street to me. In simple language, I mean to say."

"Father," said Rosa, "can't you see that Ernest is tired?"

"I'm not exactly tired—" said Ernest.

"Splendid. Then perhaps you won't mind answering a question or two," said the earl.

"I'll be glad to," said Ernest, "if I can."

Privately he had grave doubts that he could answer any question relating to finance.

"Fellow called on me to-day to sell me shares in Afro-Anglo-Paraco Rubber," said the earl. "Of course, I've no money to invest, but I might have one day and I'd like to know what you think of the company."

"Afro-Anglo-Paraco Rubber, did you say, sir?" said Ernest, playing for time.

"Right."

"I am of two minds about it," said Ernest, trying to look astute. "One says 'yes'; the other says 'no'. The stock has its merits; but it also has its defects. Under certain conditions, it is a good buy. Under other conditions, I should not advise its purchase. Of course, you understand I am not a rubber man—"

"Aren't you?" asked the earl.

"No. You might call me an oil man, or a steel man or a wool man, but not a rubber man," said Ernest, and his desperation deepened. "Once I was a copper man and a leather man, but I never was a rubber man."

"I'll make a note of that," said the earl. "About that stock now, do you think—"

Screams from the kitchen cut short his question.

"Cook shouldn't scream like that," said the earl. "Crump, find out what is happening out there."

But Crump did not reply, for Crump was not there.

The shrill sounds continued.

"I shall have to look into this," said the earl, and he sauntered out to the kitchen.

"I'm going, too," said Ernest. "It might be burglars."

He followed the earl, and Lady Rosa followed him.

The sounds came from Mrs. Featherby, who was sluicing water on the prostrate form of Crump.

The earl felt Crump's pulse in a businesslike way and said,

"He's fainted, that's all. He does that sometimes. Cook, some brandy. And stop that caterwauling."

"Yes, m'lud," she said.

She brought the brandy. As the earl administered it to Crump, he asked,

"What did you do to him, Cook?"

"I, m'lud?"

"You."

"Nothing, m'lud. I was busy getting the trace-sponge ready to serve, when in he comes white as rice, hollers 'Spooks and falls in a heap.'"

The earl poured a second dose of brandy into Crump, who stirred and opened his eyes.

"Where am I?" he asked faintly.

"Safe and sound on the kitchen floor," said the earl. "And quite unharmed. Take it easy, Crump. You'll be all right in a minute."

New Healing Remedy

Medical Experts Find Pectin Kills Bacteria In Wounds

In the pectin which housewives use to make jelly, Indiana University medical experts have discovered a quick-healing remedy for wounds. The details have just been made public at Bloomington, Indiana.

Pectin is a jelly that comes from boiling fruits and vegetables. Apples are rich in it. Curiosity as to why scraped apple helps to cure diarrhoea led to the wound-healing discovery. It was already known pectin was the effective part of the apple.

These facts suggested pectin might have the power to kill germs, but pectin proved to be a powerful germ-killer only under certain circumstances. Its effects depended on the acidity or alkalinity of the place where it was applied. In acid areas pectin often wiped out the bacteria. In alkaline environment the jelly completely lost its antiseptic value. It proved well-suited to deep, infected wounds.

Incidence Of Heart Disease

Increase Of 53 Per Cent. In Number Of Deaths During Ten Year Period

An increase of 53 per cent. in the number of deaths from diseases of the heart and arteries in Canada during the ten years from 1920, makes the progress of medicine in this field of vital interest.

According to the American Medical Association, heart and arteries mortality in the United States increased from 124 per 100,000 population in 1920 to 224 per 100,000 in 1932. In Canada the rate was 222.8. Incidentally the rate varied as between provinces, that of Ontario being 310.5 while Saskatchewan was only 121.2. Quebec was 174.5.

While it is estimated that one out of every five men die of heart disease, science nevertheless is making such studies that the present rates will be cut down when the general public realize that by periodic examinations, heart trouble can be checked in its earlier stages.

Prevention of nearly half of heart diseases lies in slowing one's pace, taking care of the waistline, keeping the intestinal tract oiled and controlling the diet, according to the specialists, who warn those over 35 to learn how to enjoy limited activity.

Was Oldest Canadian

Indian Believed To Be 110 Died Recently In Ontario

Simon Commanda died from pneumonia, two weeks after celebrating what was believed to be his 110th birthday.

The aged Nipissing reserve Indian died at the home of his son, Paul, at Beauceage, 10 miles west of North Bay, Ont. Simon, chief of the reserve for 20 years, was believed Canada's oldest resident. Members of his family said Hudson's Bay records proved him to be 110 years old.

The Riel rebellion found Commanda fighting for government forces. It was the only time he ever bore arms.

Inhabitant: "I 'ave."

Visitor: "But, really, I cannot see what you can find to keep you busy."

Inhabitant: "Neither can I—that's why I like it."

Alchemy Changes Metal

First Time Human Agencies Have Changed A Chemical Element

Alchemy by high pressure, in a Harvard laboratory, which changed tellurium, a soft chemical element akin to sulphur, into a new kind of metal, was reported to the American Institute of Mining and Metallurgical Engineers at New York. This is the first time human agencies have changed a chemical element into something different. But the discovery has no direct practical value, according to Dr. P. W. Bridgman, who reported the pressure effects.

Bitten By Gorilla

Circus Executive Has Arm Badly Mangled And Wrenched

John Ringling North, executive head of the Ringling Brothers and Barnum and Bailey Circus, was bitten on the arm by "Gargantu the Great", giant gorilla, at the circus winter quarters in Florida.

North was standing in front of a cage when the gorilla seized his arm through the bars. The arm was badly mangled and wrenched. Richard Kroner, the gorilla's keeper, beat off the animal with a club.

The World of Wheat.

By H. G. L. STRANGE

Director, Research Department
Searle Grain Co. Ltd.

Great wars are fought; battles are won and lost; nations and civilizations rise, flourish and decay; governments come and go; statesmen, politicians and dictators have their brief day; "The Captains and the Kings depart."

Such has been the history of the world for ages, but throughout it all, with quiet, dogged persistency farmers have ever continued steadfastly to grow foodstuffs for the people.

The story of production of wheat, barley and rice is interwoven with the story of mankind, with its hopes and despair, loves and hates, victories and defeats.

Soldiers and armies pass and repass, despoil the land and ruin the countryside, but before battles, in the midst of battles and immediately after battles, farmers ever continue unflinchingly to perform their essential tasks.

Veterans of the Great War will recall how in France and in Belgium the farmers would sow their grain, often under shellfire, and then, usually with womenfolk to help, would follow immediately on the heels of battle lines garnering the precious growing grain.

"Seed time and harvest shall not cease" the Bible assures us, and the promise is brought to fulfilment by the courageous labours of those who till the soil.

Following factors have tended to raise price: Increasing fears of war in Europe -- Spain buys Australian wheat -- Believed that Philippines will have to import rice this year -- Rains badly needed in Australia -- Argentine corn crop smallest in 15 years -- Severe dust storms in southwest U.S. -- French franc declines further in value

Following factors have tended to lower price: Favourable weather in France and Italy -- Spain's olive production largest since '29 -- Beneficial rains improve moisture conditions in the Argentine -- Good progress being made with spring wheat sowing in Italy -- Spring plowing commenced in Russia and winter grains very satisfactory
-- Above normal yields of linseed expected in India.

Know the Seed You Grow.

Each year the farmer must choose the seed to be sown, and whether it be home-grown or purchased it must have one essential characteristic, that of being able to grow. This can only be known after a test of its germinating ability has been made.
Seed, when purchased at a distance, should only be bought on guarantee of an official analysis which indicates its purity as well as percentage of germination.

With home-grown seed it rests with the farmer to acquaint himself with the value of his seed, and this is also often the case with seed purchased locally. This information can be obtained by sending a sample to the nearest office of the Seed Branch for official analysis, or by making a germination test at home.
The equipment necessary is very simple. At the Dominion experimental station, Kapuskasing, Ont., a shallow box of sand or fine earth, 12x20 inches, has been found entirely satisfactory. A definite number of seeds, usually 50 or 100, are planted in the sand, these being spaced to leave room between each seed. The box is placed in a warm place and watered often enough to keep damp.

Five to seven days later the seedlings are counted and the germination percentage is determined. Blotting paper or flannel on a deep plate can also be used, but has not been found as satisfactory as the sand-box.

The results of such a test make it possible to decide with certainty the value of the seed. An unfortunate experience which occurred in Northern Ontario serves to show the value of such tests. Last spring a local farmer purchased seed oats from a considerable distance. He did not check on germination but sowed the seed as received. A month following seeding he brought a sample to the station, with the complaint that nothing had grown in his field. A test revealed germination to be eight per cent. While it is true that later he was refunded the purchase price of this seed, he nevertheless lost his crop in a season when abundant crops were reaped all around him, a loss which he could have avoided.

Of the various factors which spell success or failure with a crop, many are out of control of the farmer.
The factor of seed viability, however, is directly under his control and should never be overlooked. Sound seed is one of the first essentials to a good crop.

WE OWE YOU MONEY

Payable in CASH—ON DEMAND

If yours is one of the 4,740,000 accounts in which people have dollars on deposit in Canada's chartered banks, your bank owes you money.

That money does not belong to The People, the government, the nation, or to your neighbour. It is YOURS.

If you are a savings depositor, the bank, in addition to providing safety, pays you interest on YOUR MONEY just as a borrower pays interest to the bank, for

WHAT IS A BANK?—It is an institution organized to receive deposits and to make loans; that is the mechanical description. But it is a much more human place than that; it means much more to YOU.

Your bank is a place where you can deposit money for yourself and your family, with every assurance that you can get it back whenever you call for it—in full and with interest.

The bank's books show your deposit as a sum of money it owes to you—must pay to you when you ask for it—a liability of the bank.

Your bank is, too, a place where persons worthy of credit may borrow for business or other legitimate purposes.

The borrower must be worthy.
By worthy, we mean that because of his record for honesty and integrity, his business ability, and the things he owns, he may be counted on with reasonable certainty to be willing and able to repay. We MUST know that he is a "good risk", for we MUST keep YOUR deposit and those of all other depositors SAFE, against the day you call for what WE OWE YOU.

As a depositor, you are our creditor; we have to be prepared to pay you in full. Therefore we must do our utmost to collect in full as much as we loan, plus our costs of operation.

We pay interest for deposits and charge interest on loans.
You will be surprised when we tell you the range of our costs, the smallness of our margin of profit.

Bank deposits are the money of certain people — not "The People". There is the substance of Canadian banking as plain as a pikestaff. You have known it for a long time; you can let others know just whose money it is they speak of, when they talk about the community's claim to bank deposits.

More than 4,700,000 people in Canada—equal to more than 42 per cent. of Canada's population —have "money in the bank"— deposits lodged with Canada's chartered banks. Of these no fewer than 4,084,000 are savings depositors receiving interest on their money.

Canada's chartered banks have paid over $397,000,000 in interest on deposits in the last ten fiscal years.

Savings of the Canadian people, deposited in the chartered banks, now total nearly $1,584,000,000 — the average savings deposit being $387.

There are about 660,000 current accounts of individuals and corporations totalling $679,000,- 000 in Canada's chartered banks.

It takes the equivalent of nearly three average savings accounts to make one loan of $1,000.

And it takes the net profits, over and above the costs of doing business, on scores of loans of $1,000 each for a year, to make up the loss of one single loan of $1,000.

This shows what care the banks must take in lending, if the depositors' funds are to be safeguarded, for the net profits of banks are less than one-half of one per cent. on their total assets.

Without deposits a bank could not long continue in business. YOUR MONEY remains on deposit in the bank ONLY AT YOUR WILL; and if you think the bank is lending recklessly, you will draw it out.

The bank must always keep itself in a position to pay you your deposit, in full, in cash, whenever you choose to call for it.

Canada's chartered banks realize that the establishing of your home, the happiness of your family, the education of your sons and daughters, their start in life, their progress in business, your provisions for a rainy day, your peace of mind in the twilight of life, may depend largely upon this money—money you have deposited in a bank — money YOUR BANK OWES TO YOU.

THE CHARTERED BANKS OF CANADA

Mountain View Notes

The March meeting of the W.I. was held at the home of Mrs. T.
Finley, with an attendance of fifteen members and sixteen visitors. Mrs.
Ed. Blain, president, occupied the chair. The secretary called the roll and then followed a brisk business session.

Final arrangements were made for the Amateur Night to be held in Community Hall on Friday evening, March 25th. Mrs. Bennie St. Clair was appointed to look after obtaining judges, and Mrs. Ellis Barnes the music.

The topic, "Agriculture," was given by Mrs. Clarke, who read a most interesting paper on her subject, after which she staged a competition, the prize going to Mrs.
Coates.

Mrs. Schultz created lots of mirth when she handed round potatoes and green and white crepe, with instructions to the members to dress the potatoes as they would dolls.
The climax came when the members paired the throng in couples and awards for the neatest and most comical went to Mrs. Roberts and Mrs. Thurlow, Mrs. Ed. Blain and Miss Louise Schultz, respectively.

The meeting adjourned and a bounteous lunch was served by the hostess, Mrs. Finley, assisted by Mrs. Ellis Barnes, Mrs. Ed. Barnes and the Misses Bruce, St. Clair and ## Conservation and Reforestation

"Twenty-five per cent. of land should be forest, if water supply is to be preserved, purified and regulated."

The foregoing is an extract from a lengthy article in a recent issue of Toronto Saturday Night penned by E. Burnham Wyllie, in a strong appeal for a vigorous national policy for conservation of the existing timber wealth of the country and for a permanent and progressive policy of reforestation to replace depleted reserves.

While the writer makes his comment particularly applicable to conditions in Ontario and the Maritime provinces, the subject is of more than passing interest and importance to Western Canada in view of the effect of denudation of timber upon the future of agriculture.

An Important Influence

It is true that the ability of stands of forest to draw precipitation is a controversial topic among experts but there is no gainsaying the statement that forests can and do exert an important influence in conserving moisture that actually falls to the benefit of field crops, livestock and every other branch of the agricultural industry. Practical farmers have observed time and again that snow which has been held by trees and even fences has in dry years spelled the difference between a good crop and a poor one, or between a fair crop and none at all within the area influenced by such trees or fences. Similarly, it should be generally understood by this time, that even a few trees exert an influence on the retention of summer moisture within a limited contiguous area, to say nothing of their value in tempering high winds to neighboring crops, for the shelter of livestock, prevention of soil erosion, and insurance of a permanent supply of timber for fuel, construction and other industrial purposes.

All of these and other aspects of the question of conservation of forest resources and reforestation are dealt with in Mr. Wyllie's enlightening contribution and he quotes freely Canadian and United States authorities in support of his general contention that "we know to-day that agriculture is frightfully handicapped as forests are stripped from the land."

Little Protection Here

If 25 per cent. of the land under tree growth is a proper balance, as Mr. Wyllie says, then very large sections of the Canadian west are far short of this requisite protection, for the agricultural industry and other areas, which a few years ago harbored substantial stands of trees, will fall into the same category, sooner or later, unless a sound policy of conservation reforestation is adopted. It is aptly pointed out that a tree which has taken many years to grow can be cut down in an hour or two or perhaps even in a few minutes.

Even in some sections of Ontario, regarded by westerners as a well-treed country, and at one time clad with dense forests, timber has been depleted to such an extent that less than five per cent. of the land has even scrub tree growth, with the result, to quote Mr. Wyllie, "wells fail, streams dry and pasturage withers when the forests have gone."

As far back as 1922, E. J. Zavitz, now Ontario's chief forester, is quoted as stating that "at the present rate of cutting the stand of pines in the Laurentians which took centuries to grow, will be exhausted within 20 to 25 years," indicative of the extent of the slaughter of these once great forest reserves."

It is important and interesting to note that not only does the absence of trees enhance drought conditions in semi-arid country but also is responsible for floods in periods of heavy rainfall, if Mr. Wyllie's diagnosis is correct, and there is plenty of authority to support him.

Damage Is Result

"Where forest trees have been consumed from slopes and plains the land is left without a natural umbrella to break the force of heavy rainfall," says this author. "The downpours score the land, carrying topsoil in drifting muddy floods into stream beds incapable of holding the new volumes of fresh waters plus the washed down soil—result, the devastating floods that caused more than twenty-five million dollars in damage to homes, farms, bridges and embankments last spring.

"The Western provinces and many counties in the East are faced with the necessity for costly schemes to retard soil erosion that has reached threatening proportions. Had the western people planted forests as well as wheat, there would be no drought problem in the west to-day in anything like the devastating threat that now means the depopulation of vast reaches of western lands and the terrifically costly relief bills to be met annually."

Principles Sound

While Mr. Wyllie may have exaggerated the extent of the area which may have to be depopulated, nevertheless his view of the underlying principles of the value of conservation of forest resources and reforestation is as sound in Western Canada as in the east and is worthy of serious reflection in the interests of the future of the principal industry of the prairies.

There are other arguments in support of a progressive policy of reforestation and conservation, as for instance the effect of denudation of trees on the wild game and fish resources of the country and the aesthetic value of trees which could well be expanded were space available.

Madrid Cabby Consolated For Animal Killed By Shrapnel

An unhappy caddy of Madrid whose horse was killed by shrapnel from an insurgent shell that exploded against the front of the Associated Press office found consolation in sudden wealth. While he was bewailing his luck and his loss of a livelihood three food buyers appeared and the bidding for the horse worked up to 625 pesetas ($43.50). The successful bidder removed his purchase immediately to replenish the supplies of a collective dining room.

Shows Alarming Decline

Small Consumption Of Eggs In Canada Is Ruining Poultry Industry

Startling figures are presented by Fred W. Beeson, Editor of Canada Poultryman, Vancouver, in a signed editorial, showing an enormous annual loss to the industry. He draws pointed and very timely attention to an alarming condition in one of Canada's major industries, an industry valued at more than $100,000,000 annually, suffering the tremendous drop in domestic consumption of one billion eggs annually. The question is asked poultrymen, "what are you going to do to meet the competition of breakfast foods, vegetable and fruit juices which are daily pushing the egg off the dining tables of the Dominion?"

Figures from the Dominion Bureau of Statistics show the steady decline in egg consumption during the last ten years. Whereas the per capita consumption in 1927 was 356 eggs, it is to-day down to 260 eggs, a decline of exactly eight dozen for every man woman and child in Canada.

A petition is published asking the Hon. James G. Gardiner, Dominion Minister of Agriculture, to secure an appropriation of $100,000 for the purpose of conducting a national advertising campaign, similar to that now in effect for the Fishery industry, sponsored by the Department of Fisheries.

It is pointed out that many thousands of families are wholly dependent on egg production for a livelihood as well as thousands more employed in the distribution of poultry products. Besides these there are tens of thousands of farmers who rely on egg money to buy their groceries, clothe the children and pay taxes. Also large sums are lost to Canadian feed, supply and equipment houses through smaller flocks and lowered gross production.

Collected Their Wages

Two Men Wait Sixteen Years Before Asking For Pay

It's rare when a man waits sixteen years to ask for his pay and it probably is rarer when he collects it after that long a delay.

Joseph and James McBride, brothers now living in Ellwood City, Pa., have done just that.

Back in 1922, they lived in Power Point, Columbia County, and worked a half day at the Mullins Manufacturing Corp. plant in Salem, Ohio.

Recently, Andrew MacLeod, secretary-treasurer of the corporation, received a letter from the boys. They said they had worked a half day—"we believe, in 1920 or 1921, we're not sure"—and explained that they did not ask for their pay then but that they needed it now badly."

MacLeod dug into the records, found the men had worked a half day April 5, 1922, and sent checks for their wages.

W. C. Sandercock, Saskatchewan School Teacher, Published Collection Of Poems

One of Saskatchewan's better known poets and a teacher in schools of this province for nearly 25 years, W. Clark Sandercock of Pathlow, Sask., died in a Saskatoon hospital recently. Mr. Sandercock's principal collection of poems was printed in 1935 under the title "The Dance in the Buffalo Skull."

Mr. Sandercock had hundreds of friends throughout the province but few knew that he was ill in hospital before his death.

Mr. Sandercock was born in London, Ontario. He came to Western Canada in 1880 with his parents who settled at Pilot Mound, Manitoba.

Mr. Sandercock is survived by his widow and two daughters.

Scotland Preparing Great Welcome For Visitors To Exhibition

Scotland is preparing one of its greatest welcomes for the thousands of its people and the travellers who will flock to Glasgow this summer for the Scottish Empire Exhibition.

Opening May 1 and continuing through October, this $50,000,000 exhibit will be one of the premier tourist attractions of Europe this year and will act as a magnet to draw loyal Scots home from every corner of the globe.

"Already 80,000 season tickets for the Exhibition have been sold to the people of Scotland alone," says Douglas Malcolm of the American Travel Service, who predicts that between 15,000,000 and 20,000,000 people will visit the display this summer.

A 300-foot observation tower, accommodating over 600 people at a time will mark the centre of the Exhibition grounds. It will stand on a hill rising 170 feet and will dominate an illuminated loch. On a clear day visitors to the tower will be able to see nearly half of Scotland.

The buildings for the Exhibition are now complete, and hundreds of men are busy putting the finishing touches on the interiors. King George VI. will open the exhibition.

Would Help Industry

If Women Demanded Goods Purchased Be Made In Canada

Women, it has often been said, could rule the nation if they would take an interest in the affairs of the country and organize. Similarly the control of women could be advantageously exercised in other ways, in the purchase of Canadian made goods for instance.

The women of Canada control 87 per cent. of the purchases made in the Dominion, either directly or indirectly, and thus they exercise a potent influence on employment conditions.

What a boon to industry if women would but demand that the goods they purchase be made in Canada. The wheels of factories would soon be humming at peak production to turn out the requirements if the housewives would only decline to purchase goods made outside of Canada.

It is, perhaps, too much to suggest that women purchase Canadian-made goods for patriotic reasons alone, but when by so doing they ensure work for their husbands, their brothers and friends and prosperity to the nation, then the idea should not be too idealistic. At any rate, it is something worthy of thought.—St. Catharines Standard.

"I'll never be the same, m'lud," said Crump.

"Nonsense. What happened to you?"

"Elaine, m'lud, she came back." "Came back?"

"Yes, m'lud. I left her dead, as dead as Napoleon. I closed her eyes. Then she vanished. I thought Sloat had taken her away—for a joke—but he denied it. A few minutes ago I went into my room to get a handkerchief, and there she was! Her eyes were open and she was wagging her tail!"

"But they don't, you know," said the earl. "Dead pugs, I mean."

"She did," insisted Crump. "You'll excuse me for asking, Crump," said the earl, "but were you just a tiny thought stupefied?"

"You know that I am never in the least inebriated, except, perhaps at Christmas," said Crump.

"That's so," admitted the earl. "It must be a miracle then. Let's investigate it."

An expeditionary force, headed by the earl, with Lady Rosa and Ernest close behind him, and Crump and Mrs. Featherby forming a tremulous rear-guard, pushed into Crump's room, which was just off his pantry.

"You're right, Crump," said the earl. "Her eyes are open and she is wagging her tail."

He stopped a dozen feet from where the dog lay in her basket-bed by the fire-place.

"Nice Elaine. Good doggy," he said. She continued to gaze at them fixedly, the while wagging her tail.

"Well," said the earl, "I wasn't afraid of her when she was alive so I suppose I shouldn't be afraid of her ghost. I am, though," he added. Cautiously he edged nearer to Elaine.

"Nice ghostie, nice ghostie," he said, and stretching out his hand he patted Elaine's ebony muzzle.

"Stuffed!" he exclaimed. "She's been stuffed."

"B-b-but stuffed dogs do not wag their tails," said Crump, in the doorway, poised for flight.

"This one does," said the earl. He bent closer and could hear a tick-tick-tick. "Clock-work," he said.

"By Jove, how clever! You'd hardly know her from the old Elaine, would you, Crump?"

The butler came forward and knelt beside Elaine. He stroked her with hands which trembled a little. Elaine gave a short, sharp bark. Crump catapulted back on the seat of his butlerian trousers.

"Crump!"

"Yes, m'lud."

"Pull yourself together. The creature can't hurt you."

"But she barked, m'lud."

"I know that. Heard her myself. And a most life-like bark it was. But she's not a ghost, Crump. At least she doesn't feel like a ghost."

"I'm afraid," said Ernest, "that I am to blame for all this. I stuffed Elaine myself. I found a very up-to-date taxidermist in Bristol and he let me do it in his shop. I wanted to surprise Crump—"

"You did," said the earl.

"I did not foresee that it would upset him so," said Ernest. "It was very stupid of me."

"It was very kind of you, sir," said Crump. "Now Elaine will continue to be a great comfort to me."

He approached the pug and stroked her.

"How does one make her bark, sir?" he inquired.

"Touch her between the shoulder blades," said Ernest. "And she wags her tail for twelve minutes if you wind her up."

"She's wonderful, sir, simply wonderful," said Crump. His face was wreathed in beams now. "I'm most grateful to you, sir."

"And I," said the earl, "am hungry. Shall we finish our dinner before somebody else begins to wag and bark?"

They returned to the dining room.

In the kitchen Crump was pouring the after-dinner coffee into Spode cups.

"As I remarked, my dear Sylvia, I am considered an excellent judge of men," he said. "A good butler

CHAPTER VII.

After dinner they had a musical evening. Lady Rosa, at Ernest's request, sang "Come to the Fair," "Drink to Me Only with Thine Eyes," and "Love's Old Sweet Song." The earl, at nobody's request, attacked, with a reedy voice, "Uncle Tom Cobby and All," though handicapped by the fact that he was sure of neither the words nor the tune. Ernest, by popular demand, rendered "Listen to the Mocking Bird" (with variations) on his harmonica.

"What a talented chap you are, Ernest," remarked the earl. "You're not only musical but you stuff a superb pug."

"Thank you, sir."

"It was an extremely thoughtful thing to do," said Lady Rosa.

"Neither Father nor I thought of doing it, and we knew, far better than you could have, how much Elaine meant to Crump."

"It was nothing," murmured Ernest, "nothing at all."

"And, now, Ernest," said the earl, "I'm going to ask you to do something for me."

"I'll be glad to, sir. What do you wish stuffed?"

"My sister Julia," replied the earl. "Oh, horribly sorry. That slipped out. Shouldn't want her stuffed really. Shouldn't know where to put her if she were. And she's not a bad old winkle if you don't have to see much of her."

"Ernest is still wondering what you want of him," his daughter reminded the earl.

"He must be," said the earl. "Well, Ernest, the fact is I should like to borrow the use of the castle for two days and nights."

"Of course you may," said Ernest. "When do you want to be to leave?"

"But I don't want to leave," said the earl. "I want you to stay and help me fling the beanfest. Will you?"

"Glad to," said Ernest, anxious to oblige, but wholly in the dark as to the nature of the beanfest.

"Ta," said the earl. "You can always count on a Bingley to do the right thing, as King George the Third remarked when Lucius Bingley married the bar-maid."

"The idea Father is trying to convey in his obscure way is that we'd like to hold the annual Hunt Ball of the Pennyton Hounds here a fortnight from tonight," Lady Rosa said.

"You see," enlarged the earl, "it's the county's biggest binge, and it's always been held here since men began to chase foxes in these parts. We sleep some of the hunting party the night before the hunt, and the next night all the lads and lassies gather in their pink coats and best pinafores for a bit of innocent merriment. We contribute the castle and the hunt members supply the eatables, drinkables and music, and a good time is had by all, except the fox."

"I'll be very pleased to donate the use of the castle," said Ernest.

"My best thanks," said the earl. "You'll see a very posh affair, my boy. Royalty itself has ridden with the Pennyton pack and got itself genteely sozzled at the ball. There'll be more peers of the realm about than you can shake a stick at, if you are in the habit of shaking a stick at peers."

"I'm not, laughed Ernest. "I'll stay out of sight in my tower."

"You'll do nothing of the sort," returned the earl. "I want to exhibit you. You're by way of being a celebrity, you know."

"I?"

"Talk of the town, and I don't mean perhaps," said the earl. "Look at this."

He handed Ernest a London newspaper.

Ernest gave a gasp of dismay. His own features stared out at him from the page. He saw a highly informal and none too flattering photograph of himself standing by the castle moat, and from the shape of his mouth it appeared that Ernest had been caught in the act of committing his matutinal yodel. A caption informed the aghast Ernest that he was "the millionaire American sportsman, caught by the candid camera at Bingley Castle which he has taken for the season." It also told him society was watching, with interest, his antics. Then the type began to blur before his eyes, and the thought "If the folks back home in Iowa see this, I'm sunk" nipped at his cerebrum.

"I didn't know my picture had been taken," he said. "One doesn't these days," said the earl. "Our vaunted English respect for privacy has joined the dodo in the limbo of extinct institutions. I always bathe in the dark lest there be a candid-camera oaf lurking in the wood-work to snap me sponging. Why, once one of the ticks took me whilst eating sapphetti in Soho, and a pretty sight I was, too."

"Has there been much of this sort of thing?" asked Ernest. "Publicity about me, I mean."

"Heaps and heaps," said the earl. "By Jove, I knew I had something to show you. I've cuttings about you from all the London papers. Riots of fancy some of them are, too. How they gets such facts I can't think."

"What facts?"

"About how you spent a night in the dungeon for fun, and how you don't believe in clothes, and how you yodel—but wait, I'll get the cuttings."

"Never mind, thank you," said Ernest, with mounting misery.

"You're used to that sort of tosh. I daresay," said the earl. "Wish I knew how those ferrets find out things. No doubt some servant gossips a bit over his beer in the local pub, and a spy under the table jots it down on his cuff."

"Father," said Lady Rosa, "you didn't, by any chance, do a spot of gossiping yourself when you were up in London, did you?"

Means Plenty Of Work

Statistics Show Tabulation Of Canada's Trade Is Some Job

Tabulating Canada's trade is a man-sized job from whatever angle it is regarded judging by the official statistics issued in the name of the Canadian government. For imports alone 308 pages are required in the last issue giving the quarterly report of the Trade of Canada; and these imports range all the way from toothbrushes to works of art on which Canadians spend money abroad irrespective of whether or not they are produced in this country, and in the production of which men and women are employed.

The British liner, Queen Mary, has 596 clocks aboard.

Marine Guard Disbanded

U.S. "Horse Marines" Have Last Review At Peiping

The world's only "Horse Marines" passed out of existence at Peiping recently.

This mounted detachment of the United States Embassy marine guard passed in a last review at Breckenridge field before disbanding forever.

The "Horse Marines" consisted of 30 expert sabremen, all crack pistol and rifle shots, commanded by one officer. The detachment was first organized here in 1912 to protect Americans living outside the Embassy quarter in Peiping's narrow lanes.

The Government's decision to split the Peiping Embassy Guard, transferring half its personal to Tientsin, caused the mounted marines to be disbanded.

Survived Indian Mutiny

English Woman Died Recently At Age Of Eighty-Five

Mrs. Emily Frances Doll, one of the very few survivors of the Indian Mutiny of 1857, died at Much Hadham, Herts, aged 85. She was born in India, and when the Mutiny began was taken into the besieged fort of Saugor, Central Provinces. She remained there until the relief came after several months. Of the many children in the siege, only one other came out alive.

How Are Life Insurance Funds Invested?

Answer.—In government and municipal bonds and debentures, first mortgages and other securities.

Question.—What do these investments accomplish?

Answer.—They help to finance the undertakings of our Federal and Provincial Governments—our municipalities—our industries and public utilities. They also aid in building new homes and schools—and in improving farms.

Q.—What is the total amount of Life Insurance funds invested in Canada?

A.—More than Two Billion Dollars.

Q.—What does this sum represent?

A.—It represents the accumulated savings of more than 3,500,000 Canadian men and women.

Q.—How do I benefit from these investments?

A.—Through good roads, new schools and local improvements made by your own municipalities, which, in turn, create employment.

Q.—What is the guarantee back of these invested funds?

A.—The security of the individual loans, in addition to the integrity of the borrowers—whether governments, corporations, or individuals.

Q.—Have the Life Insurance companies of Canada kept faith with their policyholders?

A.—Yes. In good times and bad, they have fulfilled every guarantee 100 cents on the dollar.

This is the fourth of a series of messages sponsored by Life Insurance Companies operating in Canada. The fifth, to appear in two weeks' time, will discuss Life Insurance investments in Alberta.
